28-03-2022

Press release COVID-19

Effective 29 March 2022, there are no longer any restrictions relating to COVID-19 for persons entering Denmark.

The entry restrictions have been gradually relaxed and now the final restrictions are being lifted. Since 1 March 2022, the only remaining COVID-19 entry restriction has been a requirement for testing within 24 hours of entry into Denmark for persons who are neither vaccinated with a recognized vaccine nor previously infected and who enter Denmark from countries outside the EU and Schengen zone. This requirement will be lifted effective 00:00 on 29 March 2022. After this time, there will no longer be any COVID-19 restrictions on entry into Denmark.

The Danish authorities continue to closely monitor the infection situation in Denmark and abroad, including in relation to new virus variants of concern. As part of these emergency response efforts, the “emergency brake” can be activated if virus variants of concern arise. The emergency brake is not currently activated for any countries.
